Hombres de Honor (Men of Honor men's ministries)

Kerry and I have a heart to reach and disciple men—today's and tomorrow's. During our second term of service in Costa Rica, the Lord allowed us to establish Hombres de Honor, a Spanish pastoral men's ministry resource.

Praise report: Kerry and I were able to fulfill a long-held dream of launching Hombres de Honor (Men of Honor men's ministries) in Costa Rica. Jeff Swaim, of the U.S. HonorBound office, and I co-authored a book for pastors who wish to reach and disciple men in their communities. Costa Rica missionary Gary Miller and I teamed up to produce a series of discipleship videos for use at men's ministries meetings. Over the past years it has been my privilege to travel the country conducting training seminars for pastors and men's only events called "Men's Raptures." Pastors in dozens of Costa Rican churches are putting ministry to men high on their priority list. The numerical and spiritual growth of the men speaks for the impact the new ministry is having on the church.

Growth opportunity: Pray for the annual National Men's Event that will be held in Costa Rica each April. Hundreds of men are expected to attend. In October 2001, Assemblies of God executives from 13 other Latin American countries adopted Hombres de Honor as their official men's ministry, and asked me to advise them over the next several years as they adapt and implement the ministry.

Thank you for partnering with us to reach men and boys in Latin America for Jesus Christ. Together we are truly determining the destiny of nations!
